Susanna Belokamen—(Piano, Music Theory)

holds a masters degrees from the Odessa Conservatory of Music in the former USSR. She was on the faculty of the Music School for Children in Odessa, where she specialized in classical piano from the ages of six to sixteen, preparing them for competitions, recitals and music college entrance. She has 40 years experience of teaching classical piano. jazz, popular music, theory and music history.

Since 1989 she has been successfully teaching many children and adults in San Diego, CA. She loves working with children to help them discover the amazing gift of music. Children who study a musical instrument learn responsibility and discipline, they gain pride in their accomplishments which in turn makes them confident, they learn to think in a logical manner, and they will perform better in school. These are just a few of the benefits that your child can gain.
